DEATHS.

BOULDEN.

A message was received by relatives in Paris, Tuesday, announcing the death in Detroit, Mich., of Harry B. Boulden, following an illness of two weeks from a complication of diseases. The body was brought to Millersburg, where the funeral services will be held at the grave in the Millersburg Cemetery this morning at eleven o'clock. He is survived by one brother, George Boulden, of Lexington, and one sister, Miss Mollie Boulden, of Detroit.

SANDY.

The funeral of Mr. George W. Sandy, aged seventy-one, a retired farmer of Harrison county, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. W. Clifford, on the Georgetown pike, near this city, was held Tuesday afternoon, at the Sunrise Methodist church, in Harrison county. Services were conducted by Rev. W. F. Wyatt. The interment followed in the Sunrise Cemetery.

Mr. Sandy fell about two weeks ago, and fractured his hip, from the effects of which he never recovered. He is survived by his widow, who was before her marriage Miss Selena Arnold, one daughter, Mrs. J. W. Clifford, of near Paris, and one son, O. L. Sandy, of Harrison county.

RICE.

The funeral of Mrs. Harvey Rice, aged seventy-nine, who was instantly killed Saturday in an automobile accident near Lexington, was held Tuesday afternoon at the family home in Maysville. Services were conducted by Rev. Dr. John Barbour, pastor of the Presbyterian church, and Rev. J. W. Loos, pastor of the Maysville Christian church. The interment followed in the Maysville Cemetery.

Mrs. Rice was the grandmother of Mrs. Garrett Jefferson, and Mrs. Maria Worthington Blake, both of Paris, and the mother of County Judge William H. Rice, of Mason county. She was active in agricultural business despite her age. She was the mother of sixteen children, nine of whom survive. A family reunion had been held at the home of Mrs. Nellie Stevenson, at which twenty-five members of the Stevenson family had gathered. Mrs. Rice left Maysville about two weeks ago to be in attendance, Mrs. Stevenson being her daughter.

COMMERCIAL CLUB CONSIDERS IMPORTANT MATTERS

A blue sky committee to protect local investors from wildcat stock schemes will be appointed by John T. Collins, president of the Paris Commercial Club, within the next few days, it was announced at a meeting of the directors of the Club held Wednesday night, at the Bourbon-Agricultural Bank and Trust Co. The committee will also serve to protect schemes of solicitors and advertisers, and all members of the Club will require the sanction of the committee on such schemes before subscribing to them.

The meeting of the directors was called primarily for a conference with William E. Hacker, secretary-manager, who arrived a few days ago. The directors discussed organization plans and it was decided to proceed as rapidly as possible with the program of organization. Mr. Collins appointed directors for the three departments as follows: Organization Affairs, Ed. Gorey; Public Affairs, John J. Williams; Business Affairs, M. P. Collier. Mr. Gorey will appoint chairmen for committees on entertainment, publicity, finances and membership within the next day or two.

The organization of the departments of public and business affairs will await the tabulation of the referendum, which have been mailed to the entire membership asking what projects, in their opinion, the Commercial Club should undertake. Mr. Hacker is mailing letters to the membership urging the immediate return of these referenda in order that the organization work can proceed immediately.

A membership meeting will be called within the next eight or ten days, and at this time it is expected the full program of work, based on the referendum, will be announced. It is planned to provide some excellent features of entertainment at this meeting, as well as to hold a discussion of civic problems.

The directors at their meeting Wednesday night considered the matter of securing permanent quarters, but arrived at no definite conclusion. Mr. Collins appointed John J. Williams and C. K. Thomas as a committee to locate a suitable office. Arrangements have been made where the Club will use a portion of the Red Cross office in the First National Bank building temporarily.

LIEUT. LOT D. YOUNG'S ADDRESS TO "ORPHAN BRIGADE."

Lieut. Lot D. Young, of Paris, who was one of the most gallant followers of the daring Confederate chieftain, General John Hunt Morgan, in the many memorable engagements during the Civil War, in which the Orphan Brigade participated, delivered a notable address to the members of the organization, at Xalapa Farm, on Friday during the reunion. Lieut. Young's address was an eloquent effort, delivered with the impressiveness due to the occasion. The address is published herewith in full:

"Old Comrades, Ladies and Gentlemen:

"Thanking my friend, Mr. Williams for his very flattering and complimentary introduction to the members of my own household and my own people.

"And while not accustomed to talking in public, yet by reason of the sacred name of 'Old Orphan' and the privileges sometimes accorded that name I have no apologies to offer for attempting to talk before this audience, nor do I believe any are required. Especially since we see that material for speech-making, or anything else for that matter, from the ranks of these 'Old Orphans' has at last become very limited. And looking over this assemblage of old veterans we look in vain for many familiar faces whose presence forty or fifty years ago furnished such good cheer, comradeship and inspiration upon occasions of this kind and whose absence today tells of the mutability of time and the uncertainties of life. But thank God there are still a few of us left to renew recollections of comradeship and recount some of the thrilling and exciting experiences of the past. These few familiar faces and the memory of those who fell in the bloody conflict, whose voices echo from the shores of eternity, are suggestive of the associations of almost 60 years ago, and stir within the memory and heart, recollections of the most perilous and exciting times in our country's history. We were then making history. We are to, and in a sense as it were, reviewing that history. But what shall I say upon this occasion relative to that history and to these perilous and exciting times, and to what shall I refer? Shall I attempt to refer in detail to the many interesting and exciting incidents, terrible scenes, hardships and dangers, which make the history of this immortal little band 'The Orphan Brigade'? I fear to attempt this would mean failure for want of time and ability and to refer to any particular incident would doubtless be unsatisfactory to this audience as well as unsatisfactory to myself. Therefore, I shall indulge for a few moments only, in a rambling and disconnected way a few thoughts and recollections illustrative of these perilous and exciting times. And by reason of my inexperience in matters of this kind, I shall appeal to the charity of my audience to excuse or overlook, whatever of failure I may make to interest or entertain them.

"The history of this little band of Kentuckians has been so often referred to and so ably and eloquently described, by soldiers, historians and statesmen, that it would be presumption in me to even attempt a repetition of its history or add to its renown. But somehow, in some mysterious and inexplicable way, the subject and the occasion appeal to my feelings and pride and I cannot refrain from making the attempt, ludicrous as it appears to myself. And it is to the more somber and pathetic phase of the subject rather than the tragic and historic, that I shall devote the few moments of time that propriety would seem to suggest.

"Who, but the old, the very old, of this audience, composed largely as it is of the sons and daughters of those who lived in the days of the rebellion, as some would say, can remember the anguish of the parting scenes of those dreadful times, the last goodbye spoken, the last affectionate kiss, upon the cheek of the dear boy by the loving mother or devoted sister, and the turning away in sorrow with misgivings of the old father, as the last farewells were being spoken? Who, but the old, can remember with what anxiety, fear and dread, every item of news from the theater of war, from the front, as we old soldiers would say, was awaited and how anxious these old mothers and fathers were regarding the fate of their boys? Information from whom at any moment, might bring the sad, the dreadful news, that the dear one had fallen? But, who could comfort and console the bleeding heart of the dear old mother, when she received the sad, the dreadful message that her dear boy was numbered among the slain, and upon whose manly form her eyes would never again

WILL FINALLY PROBATED

The will of Col. John Cunningham, a veteran of the Mexican and Civil wars, and one of Bourbon county's representative citizens a half-century ago, was admitted to probate in the County Court in Paris, Monday. The document was dated September 19, 1889, a few months prior to the death of testator. It bequeaths all of his personal, mixed and real property to his widow, Mrs. Lavinia Cunningham, who survives him.

CITY REGISTRATION PUTS CRIMP IN REPUBLICANS

The fond hopes of the managers of the Republican campaign in this city for rolling up a majority in the registration carried out Tuesday suffered a severe crimp, when the Democrats pulled out victors to the tune of 815 majority. Through the efforts of the women, and due to their hearty response to the appeals of the Democratic campaign managers and the local press not to fail to register, the victory was achieved over what for a time threatened to assume serious proportions.

The registration began early, and all through the day large numbers of women, even those whom it had been confidently predicted by the Republicans, "would not mix in politics," came bravely to the different polling places and exercised their newly-acquired right of suffrage. And when the fact became generally known that the colored women of the city had been swarming to the polls, there was a still heartier response. The women laid aside their work and went to the polls for registration.

It was estimated that at least ninety per cent. of the women of Paris were registered Tuesday, at least sixty per cent. registering in the early hours of the morning. About 95 per cent. of the colored women registered, according to the statement made Wednesday night by a local campaign manager. The first voter to register at any place in the city was Mrs. Nannie Ramsdell, of Pleasant street, now in her eighty-third year. The registration figures were as follows: Total registration, 3,552; Democratic, 2,172; Republican, 1,357; Independent, 21; Socialists, 3. Democratic majority, 815. These figures indicate a new gain over the combined October registration in 1919, of 1,957, indicating that fully as many women registered Tuesday as did men. The registration by precincts follows:

Precincts.	Dem.	Rep.	Ind.
No. 1.....	238	61	5
No. 2.....	308	53	1
No. 3.....	304	123
No. 4.....	316	86	4
No. 5.....	289	96	3
No. 6.....	213	36	5
No. 7.....	185	148	1
No. 8.....	71	274	2
No. 9.....	131	178
No. 10.....	117	302
Total.....	2172	1357	21

With the special registration, which will follow, it is predicted that the Democratic majority in the city will be much larger. It is known that a number of white men and women, who were unable to reach the polls Tuesday on account of absence from the city or sickness, are Democrats, and will register as such.

The Democratic workers, both men and women, extend to the women of Paris their thanks for their response to the call for rounding up what will be a safe and the largest Democratic majority that has ever been given to the Democratic cause in this city. It is predicted that the women all over the county will on election day respond to the call just the same as did those in the city or registration day, and that the good old county of Bourbon will in November carry the banner for the largest majority in its history.

Two Pleasant street women, one a Democrat, the other a Republican, were discussing the merits of their respective parties. Finally the Democratic woman asked the Republican neighbor if she knew what the difference was between the Republican and Democratic parties. The lady of Harding tendency could not guess or solve the problem, when the Democratic woman enlightened her by saying: "Why, it's the difference between black and white."

Many amusing things happened when political workers escorted registrants to the polling places. One enthusiastic Democratic worker, a well-known newspaper man, escorted a young lady to Precinct No. 5, at the court house, under the impression that she was a new recruit for Democracy. On arrival she announced herself as a Republican, her father, a close friend of the newspaper man, being one of the Republican registration officers. A Republican worker who had been busy "getting out the vote," called to a neighbor, a well-known merchant, and escorted him, together with wife, mother-in-law and a friend, to the registration booth in No. 2 precinct with the consciousness of a job well done. They all registered as Democrats, and that particular Republican worker was nearly "guyed to death" by his associates.

Two colored men were discussing the result of the registration in a local restaurant Wednesday morning. Referring to the wife of a prominent Democratic worker, who had taken an active part in the day's work, one asked, "Who is this Mrs. T., who done so much good work for the Democrats?" Being informed he remarked: "Well, sah, she shorely did bring home the bacon for the Democrats." In the postoffice lobby two Democrats were talking over the registration figures when a colored man standing near by said: "Seuse me, white folks, I doan want to butt in you-all's talk, but you suttinly did make them Republican politicians look cheap yesterday."

E. L. MARCH KILLED IN LEXINGTON BY GEO. ROSE.

In Lexington yesterday afternoon Constable George Rose shot E. L. March, prominent furniture dealer, four times through the head. March was taken to St. Joseph Hospital, where he died at 4:40 o'clock. Rose, after the shooting, walked quietly to police headquarters, where he surrendered himself, and was lodged in a cell. The shooting took place in the Bitling Apartments, on South Broadway, where March made his home. Rose refused to make a statement.

March was indicted about two weeks ago by the grand jury on charges made by Mary Margaret Rose, daughter of Thomas Rose, deceased, her mother now being Mrs. R. B. Tucker. The girl, who is fourteen years old, alleged that March had assaulted her when she went into his office in response to a call from him, stating that he had a position for her. The girl is a granddaughter of the man who did the shooting.

Rumors were current in Lexington that March had sought to effect a compromise of the charges by offering settlement on a basis of $25,000. The details of the alleged assault were not given publicity.

BOURBON FISCAL COURT.

The October term of Bourbon Fiscal Court convened in the County Court room yesterday, County Judge George Batterson presiding, and a full Board of Justices present.

Anderson, $100; County Infirmary—Dr. Bruce Smith, $200.

MAYOR STARTS WAR ON ALLEGED GAMBLING DEVICES

Acting on instructions issued from the office of Mayor E. B. January, Chief of Police Fred Link yesterday served notices on all persons in the city who have been operating punch boards and slot machines, to appear in Court this morning and answer to charges to be preferred against them of maintaining and operating such machines.

In the order the Mayor stated, "I am advised that not only the person who suffers these gambling devices on their premises, but also the person who owns, sets them up or reaps any benefit from their operation are guilty of violation of the Kentucky Statutes."

PURCHASERS OF BUICKS WILL GET REDUCTIONS IF ANY ARE MADE

The following telegram has been received by the C. S. Ball Garage: Buicks have no intention of changing the list price established for the season of nineteen twenty-one. But in the event of any unexpected reductions of labor and material affecting the cost and justification of lowering of the prices of Buick cars prior to May 1, 1921, they will refund to every purchaser during that period the amount of such reductions.

MOONSHINE CONFISCATED

For some time rumors have come to the county authorities of the operations of an alleged bootlegger in the North Middletown precinct, his headquarters, it was thought, being on the Xalapa Farm. Traps were laid at different times, but in some way the proposed victim of the sleuths received warnings in time to be conspicuous by his absence.

Last Sunday Deputy Sheriff Robt. M. Gilkey made a descent on the farm, and after a search, located the source of supply. He secured four quarts and one pint of moonshine which had been secreted in a shack awaiting purchasers. The liquor was confiscated and brought to Paris, where it will be held as "evidence." A search for the bootlegger failed to produce results, as he had disappeared. Sheriff Gilkey was told he had gone to the mountains for another supply of moonshine. The officers will give him a surprise on his return. The man, according to laborers on the farm, is not employed there.

DISTINGUISHED LECTURER AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Dr. Winfield Scott Hall, one of the most distinguished men on the American lecture platform of to-day, delivered two addresses in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, in this city last night, to large and interesting audiences.

Dr. Hall, who is one of the foremost speakers in the country on the subject of sex hygiene and kindred matters, spoke in the Y gymnasium at seven o'clock, to a large delegation of students from the Paris High School, taking for his theme, "The Making Of An Athlete." At eight o'clock, at the same place he addressed a gathering of men on the subject, "Efficient Manhood." Dr. Hall is a former instructor of Mr. C. B. Harrison, the Y. M. C. A. general secretary, and the men of the city and county were fortunate indeed, to have an opportunity of hearing him.
